didn't fit either

Vol. 54 — No. 7 MONTREAL, MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 28, 1964 3 cents

DOES THE STONE FIT THE CORNER?

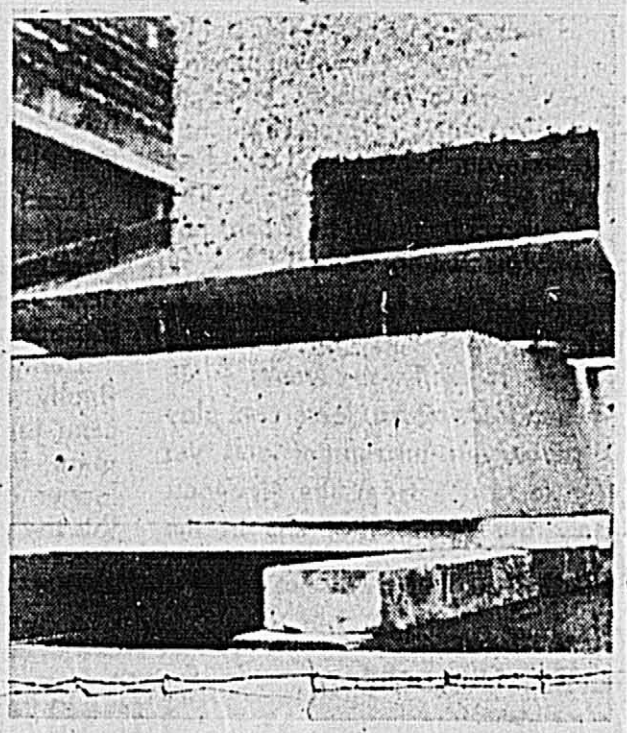
Somebody goofed in the new Humanities and Social Sciences Centre. No, not the fellow in charge of the ventilating system. This time it's the builders. Or the architects. Or somebody.

A curvaceous 36-12½-36 addition has been denied admission to the hole in the wall. The reason? Lack of space.

It's like this: on the wall of the new building, facing the Redpath Museum, is an empty space where a stone should go. The hole measures 30½ by 30¼ by 12¾ inches.

Usually reliable sources claim that the hole is where the cornertsone will be located. The cornerstone is lying in front of the hole. It's too big to fit.

Maybe the stone will shrink in the rain. Maybe the hole will expand from the heat. Maybe they'll construct a new building with a hole in the wall measuring 36-12½-36.



This is the corner stone of the new Humanities and Social Sciences Centre all ready to be set in place. The picture also shows the hole the stone is supposed to go into. Problem: the stone doesn't fit the corner!

Fukada receives appointment as Engineering associate professor

Dr. H. Rocke Robertson, Principal and Vice-Chancellor of McGill University named Dr. Minoru Fukada Associate Professor in the Department of Electrical Engineering.

The appointment was effective September 1. Dr. Fukada assumes responsibilities in his field of telecommunications.

Dr. Fukada did his undergraduate work at the University of Tokyo and then came to the University of California to take his B.S.EE. and his Ph.D.

He later carried on research with the Yokogawa Electrical Works in Japan before going to the Bell Telephone Company Laboratory in New Jersey and to the Electronics Research Laboratory at the University of California.

Dr. Fukada has published articles several times in his fields of parametric amplifiers and transistors and was the recipient of a United States Government Fulbright award in 1960-61.

Dr. Fukada was born in Kobe-City on the island of Kyushu, a flourishing city not far from Tokyo. He then moved into the capital of Japan where he studied for and received his B.S.EE. Following his nine years with the Yokogawa Electrical Works, he spent several years in Murray Hill, New Jersey.

The new Associate Professor expressed his happiness upon his appointment as a member of the McGill Faculty of Engineering and added that he finds Montreal to be one of the most interesting cities of his acquaintance.

The field of telecommunications in which Dr. Fukada is working is rapidly advancing.

Around McGill in eighty displays

Bevies of beautiful freshettes and thousands of debonair upperclassmen will meet this Wednesday evening at 7:30 pm to inspect the wares of McGill's clubs and societies.

More than 80 organizations are expected to be competing for the interests and energies of more than 2,000 students, so preparations are in full swing.

Each club will be trying to display the essence of its yearly activities in as original and ingenius a fashion as possible. In the hopes of attracting those of similar interests, each will make its recruiting either colourful or aggressive.

Sixtieth birthday

The McGill Meteorology Club has arranged for the special installation of a teletype machine. The Franklin Society is busy arranging a display of sundry Arctic and Eskimo paraphernalia, including two Siberian huskies. Old McGill, in celebration of its 60th birthday, is planning to bake a huge birthday cake and pass out free cokes. Even the Philosophical Society hopes to recruit interested minds from the excited mobs.

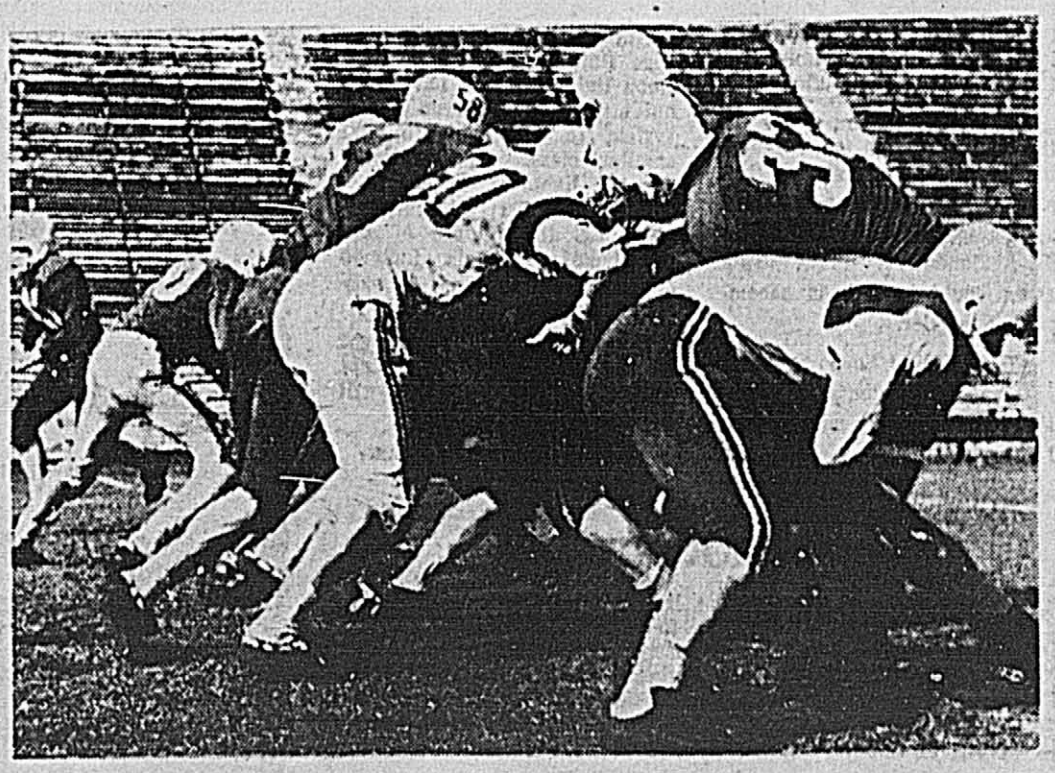
Those groups whose activities are of interest to all have been asked to provide entertainment throughout the evening. The Jazz Society, the Folk-Singing Society, and even Hillel House will be featured.

Some groups such as the Psychology Club, the Film Society, and the Premedical Society, expect to register upwards of 200 members, while others, such as the English Department Drama group will be aiming at a more select few — but all will be in attendance — religious groups, political clubs, ISA clubs, even that great organization, the Daily.

High ambition

Rumour has it that two groups have specially high ambitions. Radio McGill is hoping to procure a special televising while the Blood Drive is hoping to procure the Carnival Queen (to bleed, of course!). The Voyageurs' display of camping equipment and rope climbing should also be a "grand spectacle". Oh yes, there will be refreshments too.

Last year Activities Night was held in the gym for the first time, and the increased participation it allowed made the evening a great success. So whether you're looking for an opportunity to develop your outside interests, whether you're in search of a fuller education, or whether you just want freshettes and a colourful evening, plan to attend.



No Virginia, the football team has not incorporated the scrum into its new offence but are merely prepping for next Saturday afternoon's league opener against the University of Toronto Blues. The Redmen have strenghtened themselves in several departments and should give McGill fans something to cheer about this season.

But anyway thanks are in order for Marty Freeman, Laiq and Paul T. as well as Barry, Sue and Bob. And of course the sponsor of our jolly meal deserves a round of applause. Sports: Mac, Jim and Robby. An underpopulated Band

Less than one week from today students will be flocking into Molson Stadium for the start of what appears to be a highly promising football season. These fans will also expect to see polished pre-game and half-time shows staged by the Redmen Band and its majorettes. Quite obviously these shows can only be worthwhile if the Band is a full one and the show is well-prepared.

With only a few hours of practice time remaining before the game, this possibly appears remote. For one thing, the Band's ranks could justly be described as unhealthy. Last season Band officials had to turn away many of the freshmen who applied. This great enthusiasm stemmed mainly from the fact that band members received ten points of credit for their physical education record. This year, with no compulsory physical education requirement, membership has dropped and veteran bandsmen have had to come back to bolster the ranks. The proportion of upperclassmen to frosh has reached an unprecedented high.

With a campus of close to 11,000 students it is unlikely that only 30 can come out twice weekly — for only six weeks — to play. Surely hundreds of students can play a wind or percussion instrument and yet would prefer to watch from the sidelines. It is probably this group that sits in the stands at half-time and delivers the most scathing, and accurate, criticism of the band.

A band is made up primarily of one essential — people. Without a reasonable number of these, no amount of training will make a show look presentable on the massive field.

Time was when the band sounded terrible, formations were sloppy, uniforms were old and faded, majorettes non-existent, and the Band was merely an object of ridicule. Times have changed. In the last three years, a qualified musical director has been acquired; a band representative was sent to a conference of marching bands at Northwestern University to learn the latest methods of drill instruction; smartly outfitted majorettes have added grace to the front ranks; and the old, yellowed uniforms have given way to scarlet and white capes and plumes.

Band members attend only two hour-long practices a week during the six-week season. The cost of free trips and stadium tickets for the three away games must make these some of the best-paid hours at McGill.

During the last two years the Band has finally earned, and received, recognition from the fans. It would be a shame if the mere fact that physical education is no longer compulsory at McGill should make this the year of decline.

Criticism for Library

Dear Madam,

Redpath Library administration in the stacks is very negligent. There are some M.A. and Ph. D. students who wish to start their studies at the beginning of the scholastic year.

Firstly, there is no place for students to put their books and papers in the stacks. No desks or shelves are being given out until two or three weeks after lectures begin. The excuse is that the shelves and desks have to be cleared out before new ones can be issued. I suggest that this could have been done before the university term began — it would have been easier on the administration as well as the students.

An additional annoyance is the fact that this week seems to be moving week at the stacks. New desks and tables are being noisily rattled in by a loud-mouthed crew. This again could have been accomplished earlier.

All in all no encouragement is given to students to begin their studies early at Redpath Library.

Disgusted

... and Humanities Centre

Dear Madam,

We are all very proud of our new Humanities and Social Sciences Centre even though it it not complete. I would like to take this opportunity to make some constructive criticism.

It feels great to study in a classroom having wall-to-wall carpeting but it breaks my heart to think of how the carpets will look by the end of this year. Because the chairs are being moved around within a confined area (usually under the desk) friction between the iron bases of the legs of the chairs and the carpet is bound to wear out the latter in no time. I strongly urge that the tips be encased in smooth round plastic covers with a greater diameter than the tips. This is bound to decrease friction and cause less wear and tear.

Another boob in the Humanities Building is the lighting. Neon lights seem to have been outdated and replaced by a system of direct lighting in smaller classrooms. Not only are the lights weak, but they omit to light parts of the classroom eg. the middle of the blackboard. They also tend to cause a great deal of unnecessary shadows.

I hope this will be brought to the attention of the right authorities and something will be done about it.

Robin Behar,

The miracle of Electronovision

Dear Madam:

I am sure that the redoubtable B.N. had some reasonable purpose for publishing his review of "Electronovision Hamlet" in Friday's PANORAMA. But whatever it was remains indistinguishable to me.

On the whole Mr. N's criticism of this "nunce medium" was accurate, but what has been gained by judging an overtly acknowledged substitute in terms of the actual "live" drama? If we grant that the medium is a substitute, then Mr. N's criticism becomes irrelevant and invalid.

The producers of this innovation in filmed entertainment were, I am sure, aware of its manifold deficiencies; and an audience which went to the theatre expecting filmed perfection and "freedom" was either unrealistic or ignorant. To me this was not the case; for an aura of excitement pervaded the theatre during the showing; the audience participated in this new experiment.

Mr. N. is the only reviewer I have read who has failed to give a critical analysis tempered by enthusiasm and encouragement.

James Hone, B.Com.III.

THOUGHT

The Daily announces that it will once again print most letters that arrive in the Letters-to-the-Editor box in the Union, suitably inscribed. Suitable means typed, double-spaced, and on one side of the paper. Letters should include the name and faculty of the writer, even if a pen-name is used. They should also be witty, provocative, perceptive, thoughtful, thought-provoking, or strongly-worded. And short.

Attention is also drawn to a new Daily policy of reporting campus scoops as soon as they occur, if not sooner. The Daily's unlisted number (288-2244) now appears on most notice boards around campus, and readers are exhorted to call in immediately if anything out-of-the-ordinary and reportable occurs.

Post-Grads' car rally scheduled for Sunday

On Sunday, October 4, the McGill University Post-Graduate Students' Society will sponsor a car rally approximately 100 miles in length designed for the novice driver.

The event will begin at the Mercier Bridge and will finish with a picnic lunch at Mont St. Hilaire.

Registration fees will be $0.50 for PGSS members and $1.00 for all other entries.

The route is to be mainly paved, but some loose surface will be included to add the required degree of interest. The scoring will be on the basis of maintaining a specified average speed between check points rather than on the European elapsed time system.

The minimum crew will be one driver and one navigator and the suggested equipment is minimal so that all interested may enter.

Trophies and dash plaques are to be awarded at the finish of the event.

Exact registration times are to appear in the Classified section at a later date.

Discotheque opens at noon

At noon the McGill Discothèque will open its doors for the first time. This boite d'après-midi promises to be a rallying point for all "in" undergrads, their protégés, and a few of the oldsters who have not as yet lost their touch.

Ten lovely "Filles de Discothèque" have been specially imported for the gala opening in the Union at 1 pm. These can be identified by their preference for conservative black dress and not so conservative companions.

Indians trimmed 19-0 by U of M Carabins

by JOHN SKINNER

If potential is any criterion the McGill Indians could very well end up with a winning season. Despite their 19-0 setback at the hands of the University of Montreal Carabins Saturday, they showed a strong but at times too eager defence and a good enough game even though they were well outweighed.

Quarterbacks Robin McNeill and Skip Kerner performed well under pressure as they were at times subjected to the Carabins massive rush.

Trouble started for the Indians when, following a U. of M. interception, Michel Joly kicked a 30 yard field goal for the Carabins first score midway through the first quarter.

SKIP KERNER

In the second quarter a 20 yard pass to Marcel Morgentaler set up the Carabins second field goal, this time a 15 yard effort by Joly.

The McGill defence in the first half although inconsistent came up with several good rushes forcing U. of M. quarterback Gerry Ducharme to hurry his passes.

A McGill fumble set up a 45 yard single kicked by Joly in the third quarter. The Indians then took over on their own 25 but couldn't move and were forced to kick on third down. Gus Curry was one of the bright lights for McGill with a 35 yard average on nine kicks. The Carabins however took over where they left off as quarterback Ducharme passed to Bernie Côté for the first touchdown of the afternoon. The Indian defence producing a good rush, blocked the convert.

In the last quarter an overanxious and outweighed McGill offensive line failed to hold and McNeill forced to hurry had his pass intercepted by Carabin linebacker Dan Seni who ran 20 yards for U. of M.'s second major. The convert was again blocked.

Defensive standouts for the Indians were tackle Bod Fumerton and center Alex Ignatow. Sal Lovechio carried the ball well.

After watching the Indians in their first test it could be safely said that they are a coming team. Coach Ken Bellemare gave inexperience and poor timing as the main factors in the loss but looked forward optimistically to the next game against C.M.R. here on Wednesday.
